

*Sub
E1
amp.*
said light receiving windows in the radial direction is set so as to gradually become shorter from the inner peripheral side toward the outer peripheral side; and the opening area of said light receiving windows at the inner peripheral side of said fixed slit is set to be equal to that at the outer peripheral side, wherein said light receiving windows are a group of light receiving windows, consisting of a plurality of light receiving windows disposed on the same radius at the same phase, and the total sum of the opening areas of light receiving windows of the same phase and the total sum of light receiving windows of the other phase are set to be equal to each other.
